What is gender based violence? And what can it look like?
Gender Based Violence is any form of violence that is rooted in rigid gender roles that reinforce the power imbalance between men and women. Any time anyone does not conform to what's expected of their gender, they are at risk of being targets of violence.

Chief Seattle Club (CSC) is a Native-led housing and human services organization. Since 1970 we've provided sacred spaces to nurture, affirm, and strengthen the spirit of urban Native people. Our dream is a future where our Native community is safe, housed, and connected to community that respects and celebrates Native cultures. At CSC, we have a dedicated Traditional Wellness team to support our members and our staff.
